FINANCIAL.

So dull, so wearisomely monotonous, is the condition of things everywhere, Memphis included, that the Chicago Tribune considers them objects for consolation, and even that they have to supply themselves. The Tribune says: "Bankers console themselves by edicting an earlier fall trade than usual, and by admiring the superior character of the paper that now forms their bills receivathe paper that now forms their bills receivable. There is no doubt that, owing to the improved methods of business, the risks of banking are now less than they have been for a generation. It is not so profitable as it was in the flush days before the panic, but those profits did not always come to stay."

Mr. Walker of Peabody, Kansas, at which place the happy couple will take up their future abode, after an extended wedding tour. This locality was threatened with a storn yesterday afternoon, but Old Prob. changed his notion and let us off with a gentle rain, which set in about eight o'clock last night. It was one of those rains that invites a person to sleep, whether he was to or not. When the James W. Gaff returned from the excursion Thursday night, and before the company left the boat, Captain R. W. Wise was summoned into the presence of the la-dies of the Helping Hand club. Responding to the summons with his wonted alacrity in obliging the ladies, he was confronted by an intelligent lad of six or eight summers, Mas-ter Eddie Williams, who, in a touchingly worded speech, announced that he had been delegated by the ladies of the club to present the popular commander of the James W. Gaff with a silver card-stand as a token of the high regard entertained for him, etc. The captain, who has hitherto been equal to any emergency, was so deeply impressed with the surroundings that he was compelled to acknowledge the compliment by the eloquence of silence.
